“After losing custody of my first daughter due to domestic violence several years ago, I thought it was a blessing that God gave me another chance to have a child. What I didn’t expect was to be involved in another abusive relationship. Fortunately, it was different this time because I had the support of The Umbrella Center for Domestic Violence Services. After a short stay in their shelter, they helped me secure housing and the essentials needed for my baby girl. I now am an independent mom who doesn’t have to rely on anyone, and my daughter and I are happy and safe.”
